

A BOOK of DRAWINGS By H·M·BATEMAN

With an Introduction by
❖ G·K·CHESTERTON ❖

METHUEN & CO. LTD. LONDON

PR

4453

C4

247

17216

10/6

George Donnell

A BOOK OF DRAWINGS

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2007 with funding from Microsoft Corporation

A BOOK OF DRAWINGS

BY

H. M. BATEMAN

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

BY

G. K. CHESTERTON

METHUEN & CO. LTD.
36 ESSEX STREET, W.C.
LONDON

First Published in 1921

INTRODUCTION

IT is well that a draughtsman with the wild exactitude of Mr. Bateman should enjoy one riot of ridiculing modern society ; before modern society becomes too ridiculous to be ridiculed. For that is the chief danger at present to this branch of art. It is sometimes said that we have no satirists as great as Rabelais or Swift ; but satire of that strength depends on a sanity and even sobriety in real things. The imaginative effect of Rabelais owes much to the old medieval and monastic setting at which he mocked ; and Swift's wildest fancies can be seen more clearly against the background of clipped hedges and trim gardens in which Queen Anne took her tea. What could Rabelais have said, if he had stopped for wine and refreshment at a real abbey, and found that it deserved rather to be called Nightmare Abbey than the Abbey of Theleme ? Suppose Swift, on walking stiffly up to Queen Anne's tea-party, had found it was the Mad Tea Party. Suppose that Anne, like Alice, was already dining with the March Hare, the Mad Hatter and the Dormouse ? That is the disconcerting situation in which a satirist finds himself now-a-days. And so there is a tendency, in which the talent of Mr. Bateman is at once original and typical, for English pictorial satire to grow more and more fantastic. Otherwise, it might be outstripped by the facts. There was a Victorian epoch when the caricaturists were supposed to caricature the politicians. Now the politicians are caricaturing their own caricatures. Hence it will probably be found that all our ablest artists, in this manner, will grow more and more frantic and farcical, more and more incredible and crazy. They are trying to keep pace with our statesmen and social philosophers.

For instance, there is a delightful design in this book representing the secret and hideous crime of the gentleman who filled a fountain-pen with the ink in the hotel. It is exceedingly funny. But it is not so funny as it would be if a man in a hotel were allowed to fill forty fountain-pens and ten large bottles with ink, but were strictly forbidden ever to dip his pen in the ink, taking only what he needed at the moment for addressing an envelope or signing a cheque. It would be funnier still if the law which allowed him to take a bottleful, but forbade him to take a pen-full, were called a law for the saving of ink. Yet that is literally and exactly the condition of the existing law for avoiding excess in wine or whisky. A man is not allowed to buy the moderate amount he wants. But he is allowed to buy an immoderate amount in excess of his wants. He is allowed to bear away a bottle of brandy much bigger than a bottle of ink ; but he is not allowed to take a drop hardly bigger than the drop on the point of a pen. Now you cannot satirise a law like that ; any more than you could satirise the statement that black is white, or that yes is the same as no. You cannot refute what is entirely irrational, any more than you can answer the question of " Why is a mouse when it spins ? " I can imagine Mr. Bateman giving us a dizzy, delirious and doubtless delightful drawing of a mouse when it spins, but hardly of why it spins. And I can imagine him giving us an equally exuberant exhibition of a stampede of stout struggling policemen to arrest a man sipping a small glass of sherry hardly larger than a liqueur ; while processions of placid and smiling persons, clasping colossal bottles of gin and brandy, passed by like a calm and continuous background. But this very thing, which the artist might draw as a lark, the politician has already established as a law. And even Mr. Bateman could not draw the mind of the politician who conceived such a regulation. It is beyond the last visions of Futurism and the Fourth Dimension.

Again, I am enchanted with Mr. Bateman's picture of the War-time Match, and the flaming martyrdom endured by the heroic citizen, in order to observe a special sort of economy. But at least that was in itself a reasonable sort of economy, even if it led in this case to a devotion rather mystical than strictly rational. Matches were rare at the time ; they are very important at any time ; and any regulations for saving them would be quite defensible regulations. I do not call on the average man to follow the council of perfection, and win the heavenly palm and crown, towards which that flaming finger points him. But I can imagine something that would be much more fantastic even than Mr. Bateman's fantasy. Suppose Mr. Bateman were called upon to draw a man thus engaged in saving a single match, while on every side of him match-boxes piled up to the skies, in toppling towers and pyramids, were being given to the flames wholesale, like so much rubbish or mere fuel. Or suppose, in the same vein which is very much his own, he were to draw a policeman putting a very large finger on the lips of a very little boy lest he should whistle, and disturb the repose of the street ; while the street, I need hardly say, would be full of motor-buses, brass-bands, backfiring cars, sirens, fog-horns, anti-aircraft artillery, guns going off generally and so on. Well, that wild picture would be a literally and rigidly realistic picture of a real regulation. Living in London, and presumably knowing what the noise of London was like all through the war as much as at any other time, the officials actually did make a regulation that no one should whistle for a taxi-cab ; like men anxious lest the grasshopper should indeed become a burden, and his chirp disturb us amid the roaring of lions and the trumpeting of elephants. It was felt, and perhaps is still felt, by the same sensitive and delicately balanced minds, that two thin, shrill notes on a small whistle must no longer be allowed to desecrate the deathly silence of Piccadilly and Ludgate Hill.

This sense that society itself is in the rapids, is already of itself tending to extremes and even extravagancies, has brought a fresher, and in one sense a freer element into our ancient English humour, an element of which Mr. Bateman is very typical. It is a telescopic satire, at once logical and ludicrous. which shoots out to the end of any process, and even in exaggerating it, defines it. The French have always possessed it, for the French have always known where they were going, or at any rate where they wanted to go. And most of our own countrymen, happier in some ways, had not even got so far as knowing where they had got to. But if we all know now, at last, where we are really going to, and where science and statesmanship are leading us ; and if it is quite obviously to an enormous lunatic asylum, let us at least, by the grace of God, go there in company with a man who has a sense of humour.

G. K. CHESTERTON

For permission to reproduce the majority of the drawings in this book the artist is indebted to the courtesy of the Proprietors of "Punch". He has also to acknowledge similar kindnesses from the Editors of "London Opinion," "The Tatler," "The Illustrated Sporting & Dramatic News," "Land & Water" and "The Illustrated Sunday Herald."

CONTENTS

	PAGE
THE "DAMNED SPOT"	1
THE C.O.; A MAN'S MAN	3
TWO'S COMPANY—I	4
" " —II	5
THE ARTIST AND THE VILLAGE MAID	6
LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT	7
"LAST—BUT NOT LEAST"	8
SUPPLY AND DEMAND	9
POSSIBILITIES OF A VACUUM CLEANER—I	10
" " " " —II	11
" " " " —III	12
" " " " —IV	13
THE SUB-LIEUTENANT TAKES THE ADMIRAL'S QUEEN	14
MEXICANS AT PLAY	15
THE FALSE INCOME TAX RETURN	16
" " " " "	17
THE EYES OF THE FLEET	19
FORCE OF HABIT	20
STEADINESS ON PARADE	21
THEY WOULD HAVE IT!—I	22
" " " " —II	23
THE MAN WHO FILLED HIS FOUNTAIN PEN	25
THE GUEST WHO BROUGHT A BANJO	27
BROTHER BRUSHES—I	28
" " —II	29
THE BOY WHO BREATHED ON THE GLASS	31
THE PHYSICIAN HEALS HIMSELF	33
THE PRISONER AND THE RAILINGS—I	34
" " " —II	35
THE COAT THAT DIDN'T COME OFF	36
THE SPRING BLINDS	37
THE MAN AND THE HOUSE-AGENT	38
AN ICE TRAGEDY	39
IT'S ALL IN THE GAME—I	40
" " " —II	41
THE MAN WHO BROKE THE TUBE	43
THE INFECTIOUS HORNPIPE	45

HOW BIG BILL ANSWERED THE CALL—I . . .	46
" " " " —II . . .	47
THE RECRUIT WHO TOOK TO IT KINDLY . . .	49
ADVENTURES OF A DESPATCH RIDER—I . . .	50
" " " " —II . . .	51
TEMPORARY FEMALE CLERKS . . .	53
ATTRITION—I . . .	54
" —II . . .	55
THE POLITICIAN WHO ADDRESSED THE TROOPS . . .	57
LA VACHE À L'ESPIONAGE—I . . .	58
" " " —II . . .	59
THE PRIVATE GROWS A BETTER ONE THAN THE SERGEANT . . .	60
THE CIVILIAN VISITS THE WAR OFFICE . . .	61
THE FIELD BOOTS—I . . .	62
" " —II . . .	63
THE RECRUIT WHO PASSED . . .	65
STIFF—I . . .	66
" —II . . .	67
ONE UP! . . .	68
NAVAL DISCLOSURES . . .	69
THE POWER OF THE HUMAN EYE . . .	71
ECONOMY IN MATCHES—I . . .	72
" " " —II . . .	73
BETWEEN TWO DOSES OF TONIC . . .	75
IT'S THE SAME MAN! . . .	77
THE DEMON SHELL—I . . .	78
" " " —II . . .	79
BACK TO THE ARMY AGAIN SERGEANT! . . .	81
THE CAMOUFLAGE IDEA AND THE MILITARY MIND . . .	82
AFTER YOU! . . .	83
TEMPERAMENT—THE PESSIMIST . . .	84
" —THE OPTIMIST . . .	85
THE LEAVE-WANGLER . . .	87
THE EPICURE IN THE PUMP ROOM . . .	88
THE DECK CHAIR . . .	89
THE CAR WITH A WILL OF ITS OWN—I . . .	90
" " " " —II . . .	91
"THE WATCH ON THE RHINE" . . .	93
THE STOWAWAY . . .	94
THE HAPPY ESCAPE . . .	95
BACK FROM THE HOLIDAYS—THE DENTIST . . .	96
" " " —THE DOCTOR . . .	97

H.M. BATEMAN

THE "DAMNED SPOT"

M.M. BATEMAN
1917.

THE C.O.: A MAN'S MAN

TWO'S COMPANY—I

J.M. BATEMAN 1918.

TWO'S COMPANY—II

JOHN BAYNE
1897

PAST
THE ARTIST AND THE VILLAGE MAID

JOHN BAYNE
1897

PRESENT
THE VILLAGE MAID AND THE ARTIST

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT ; ITS DISTURBING INFLUENCE

"LAST—BUT NOT LEAST"

ONE OF THOSE UNFORTUNATE CASES—

--IN WHICH THE SUPPLY IS BY NO MEANS EQUAL TO--

SUPPLY AND DEMAND

POSSIBILITIES OF A VACUUM CLEANER—I

POSSIBILITIES OF A VACUUM CLEANER—II

POSSIBILITIES OF A VACUUM CLEANER—III

POSSIBILITIES OF A VACUUM CLEANER—IV

DEEDS THAT OUGHT TO WIN THE V.C.
THE SUB LIEUTENANT TAKES THE ADMIRAL'S QUEEN

MEXICANS AT PLAY

THE FALSE INCOME TAX RETURN—

AND ITS RECTIFICATION

J.M. DATENAY
'6

Wm. WATEMAN. 1918.

THE EYES OF THE FLEET
or "VISIBILITY GOOD"

J. H.
BATEMAN
1899

FORCE OF HABIT
or THE HALF-BACK FORGETS

H.M. BATHMAN . 1918.

STEADINESS ON PARADE

THEY WOULD HAVE IT!-I

THEY WOULD HAVE IT!—II

THE MAN WHO FILLED HIS FOUNTAIN PEN
WITH THE HOTEL INK

BATEMAN
1919

THE GUEST WHO BROUGHT A BANJO

BROTHER BRUSHES—I

A MAN

THE MUGWUMPS

STORM.

PEACE.

PORTRAIT OF A YOUNG GIRL

THE ARRIVAL.

J.M. BATMAN. 1919.

THE BOY WHO BREATHED ON THE GLASS IN THE BRITISH MUSEUM
AN ANTE-BELLUM TRAGEDY

Jim Barryman
29

THE PHYSICIAN HEALS HIMSELF

"PRISONER, WHEN ARRESTED, CLUNG TO THE RAILINGS"—I

"PRISONER, WHEN ARRESTED, CLUNG TO THE RAILINGS"—II

J.M.
BATEMAN .
1918 .

THE COAT THAT DIDN'T COME OFF

THE SPRING BLINDS

THE MAN WHO ASKED A HOUSE-AGENT IF HE HAD ANY HOUSES TO LET

THE MAN WHO LOVED AN ORANGE

AND HOW HE WOODED THE ORANGE

AND THE MAN WHO —

WON THE ORANGE

JIM BATEMAN - 1917

AN ICE TRAGEDY

IT'S ALL IN THE GAME—I

JIM. GATEMAN 1924

IT'S ALL IN THE GAME—II

THE MAN WHO BROKE THE TUBE

THE INFECTIOUS HORNPIPE

HOW BIG BILL ANSWERED THE CALL—I

HOW BIG BILL ANSWERED THE CALL-II

THE RECRUIT WHO TOOK TO IT KINDLY

ADVENTURES OF A DESPATCH RIDER IN GERMAN EAST AFRICA—I

ADVENTURES OF A DESPATCH RIDER IN GERMAN EAST AFRICA—II

TEMPORARY FEMALE CLERKS

ATTRITION—I

ATTRITION-II

J.M. BATEMAN. '918.

THE POLITICIAN WHO ADDRESSED THE TROOPS

LA VACHE À L'ESPIONAGE—I

LA VACHE À L'ESPIONAGE—II

DEEDS THAT OUGHT TO WIN THE V.C.
THE PRIVATE GROWS A BETTER ONE THAN THE SERGEANT

I AM BIDDEN TO THE WAR OFFICE.

I DEPART FOR IT.

I APPROACH IT.

I ENTER.

I AM NOT OBSERVED.

I AM STILL NOT OBSERVED.

I AM OBSERVED.

I AM SPOKEN TO (AND STILL LIVE).

I CONTINUE TO BE SPOKEN TO.

I AM SPOKEN TO QUITE NICELY.

I AM SHAKEN HANDS WITH.

J.M. BATEMAN 1917

I TAKE MY LEAVE.

THE CIVILIAN VISITS THE WAR OFFICE

THE FIELD BOOTS—I

JIM GATEMAN 28

THE FIELD BOOTS—II

THE RECRUIT WHO PASSED AT THE THIRTEENTH EXAMINATION

STIFF-1

J.M. BATEMAN
1918

STIFF—II

ONE UP!

H.M. BATEMAN.

NAVAL DISCLOSURES; OR THE SECRET THAT NEVER LEAKED OUT

THE POWER OF THE HUMAN EYE
A FEW CURIOUS EXAMPLES OF REPULSION AND ATTRACTION

ECONOMY IN MATCHES—I

ECONOMY IN MATCHES—II

BETWEEN TWO DOSES TONIC
A SUBALTERN'S DREAM

From B.

H.M. BATEMAN. 1916.

IT'S THE SAME MAN!

THE DEMON SHELL-I

THE DEMON SHELL-II

BACK TO THE ARMY AGAIN SERGEANT!
OR THE CURVE THAT FOUND ITSELF

J.M.
BATEMAN . '17.

HOW THE CAMOUFLAGE IDEA FIRST DAWNED ON THE MILITARY MIND

JIM BATEMAN

'7.

AFTER YOU
THE POTENTIALS BEING MEDICALLY EXAMINED

TEMPERAMENT—THE PESSIMIST

TEMPERAMENT—THE OPTIMIST

J. M. SATYAN .

H.M. BAYMAN 1917

THE LEAVE-WANGLER

H.M.
BATEMAN.
21

THE EPICURE IN THE PUMP ROOM

THE DECK CHAIR

À BERLIN: OR —

THE CAR WITH A WILL OF ITS OWN

"THE WATCH ON THE RHINE"
(NEW VERSION)

THE STOWAWAY

THE HAPPY ESCAPE

BACK FROM THE HOLIDAYS—THE DENTIST

BACK FROM THE HOLIDAYS—THE DOCTOR

PRINTED IN GREAT BRITAIN
BY JORDAN-GASKELL LTD.
2 BRIDGE PLACE, BELGRAVE ROAD,
S.W. 1.

R
453
4
47
921b

Chesterton Collection

